

All Things Will Be Well

There is light cascading
In all forgotten places
In every darkened corner
There is light

For given time and patience
Life will hold its cycle
Will take its one-way journey
Into night

Where sure as stars that shining
Dot the sooty blanket
So the moonlit furling
Hold its peace

It's just the engine roaring
The factory mass producing
A radio that's wailing
But will cease

As people tumble downward
Into their shaky consciences
The thought that Mother Nature
Doesn't care

Has ripped the Earth from nowhere
Sent killer waves to hotels
Picked up and hurled down houses
Isn't fair

Proceeds our best endeavours
To keep one home together
So we can wake up better
Than before

When love was long forgotten
A neutron and a proton
A memory waiting to happen
Nothing more

There are enough of these setting suns
To go around for eternity
There are other worlds that are like this one
This is the only one that you can see

And if you look at the movement of the stars
You will see them spinning around and around
They chase the darkness until last
Of us has disappeared into the ground

For what are we but the Earth we stand upon
And what is life but a journey to somewhere
That every being will go to when they're gone
Just as sure as now it breathes the air

And just as sure as there is life and love
There is nothing certain here or high above
